

2027 Workplace Health and Safety Conference

The organizing committee for the 2027 Workplace Health and Safety Conference is now accepting presentation proposals from professionals eager to share their knowledge and expertise at the 2027 conference.

We are looking for engaging presentations that highlight innovative practices, emerging trends, and best practices in occupational health and safety. Topics of interest include psychological health and safety; technology-enabled prevention, artificial intelligence (AI), and changing workplace risks such as climate-related hazards, workforce demographics, ergonomics, and hybrid work environments.

This is an excellent opportunity to contribute to the ongoing conversation about creating safer workplaces across Prince Edward Island.

Submissions will be assessed based on their relevance, practical application, and potential to engage and inspire our audience.

If you have a topic that can help shape the culture of workplace safety on PEI, we encourage you to submit a proposal by Tuesday, December 1, 2026. Let's work together to build safer, healthier workplaces across the province.

Presentation submission requirements

Each submission should include:

- Name(s) of presenter(s)
- Position and organization/affiliation of presenter(s)
- Title of the presentation
- Presentation description. Maximum of 75 words.
- Brief biography of presenter(s). Maximum of 75 words.
- Email address and phone number where you can be reached.

Submission

Submit your proposal at prevention@wcb.pe.ca

All submissions should be in English.

Notification of acceptance

Following a thorough review and evaluation by the committee, you will be notified by email if your proposal is selected. Notifications will be sent by Friday, December 18, 2026.
